

BRILLIANT M. SIVEY

The Interlachen for 1942 presents for the first time the coat of arms of Florida Southern College. Designed by Julia Cousins, the insignia has been officially adopted by the college as being representative of the spirit and significance of Florida Southern's educational program.

The universal scope of education is indicated by the helmet with its gallant plume, signifying the quest for the Grail of Knowledge; by the quill and scroll, implying the communication and exchange of ideas; and by the Seven Stars of Learning and the Three Pillars of Wisdom, representing the objectives of the university.

The specific application of the coat of arms to Florida Southern College is indicated by the Latin words, Lux 'Wisdom, Law, taken from the official seal, and by the clusters of oranges, reminiscent of the luxuriant beauty of our beloved campus.

Foreword

Foregoing the tendency to look in remote places for our theme, we discover this year our "acres of diamonds" right at home. Our Florida Southern is its own theme—its spirit, its growth, its influence characteristic of impressions deeply ingrained in the lives of its students.

For the best positive expression of this theme, we select the words of the Alma Mater, trusting that their repetition introducing the sections of this book will recall cherished memories of the year 1941-42 in years to come.

"In the heart of sunny Florida
There's a school we love;
Golden groves and crystal waters,
Southern, Southern, dear old Southern
Thee we'll never fail.
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater,
Hail to Southern, hail!
Sons and daughters of fair Dixie
Standing for the right,
Loyal to our Alma Mater—
Hail the Red and White!"

Dedication

In recognition of distinguished service to the field of education, in honor of the Chairman of the Florida Southern College Founder's Week and a member of the Board of Control for the State Institutions of Higher Learning, and in open admiration for the embodiment of the spirit of our Alma Mater, we respectfully dedicate the Interlachen for 1942 to Mr. T. T. Scott.

Our president, tireless worker, idealist, builder of a growing Florida Southern.

TO the Students of Florida Southern College:

The Editors and business Manager and staff of the Interlachen for 1942 have met with a multitude of difficulties in publishing this year's annual. However, they have not faltered in their task, nor have they complained. They have never suggested that they discontinue the book for this one year because of the war.

I am happy to commend them and in doing so I feel that I am speaking for the trustees, faculty, and students. Everyone of us is proud of their willingness to carry through under so many obstacles.

I want to congratulate the Seniors and to express my very great appreciation for all their friendship and association and contributions to our Florida Southern College.

To the Seniors, Juniors and Sophomores of next year, I want to wish for each a happy summer and urge you to return to the college next fall. Unless it is absolutely necessary I hope you will not allow yourselves to be robbed of your college education.

In spite of the war and the terrible days that are upon us, let us dedicate our lives anew to the great task that is before us. We must hold high this torch of ours—to let it become dim in times like these is to fail.

As the President of Florida Southern College I am giving my blessing to all the students and hoping for them the very best that life can give.

LUDD M. SPIVEY
President

The SENIORS

With jubilant college spirits suppressed by the dignity of Seniority and by the gravity of their immediate entrance into a world in turmoil, the Seniors don their caps and gowns to take their departure from their beloved Alma Mater. They leave behind them the seeds of their efforts sown in her behalf but carry along the harvest of four years of productive enterprise to nourish them on their journey ahead.

The JUNIORS

FILLING the places vacated by the Seniors is the lot of the Juniors, who take up the challenge with courage and optimism. They have widened and deepened the channels of their interest in their contact with Florida Southern. They, too, feel the exigency of the national situation but remain resolute in their determination to reach the highest possible educational level before the call.

The FRESHMEN

WITH eyes and minds open to the wonders of a growing college, the Freshmen overcome that first "lost" feeling and supplant it with a genuine interest for the work at hand. Through association with other alert young people, they "lay aside childish things" and join the unified effort to make the most of their opportunities.

“STANDING FOR THE RIGHT”

We present on the following pages some of the campus celebrities, as selected by their own colleagues and by those best qualified to judge for particular qualifications. Those chosen are not necessarily the only ones entitled to a place in the feature section, but certainly every student here has earned his place by conspicuous achievement.

The Honor Walk selection is made by the faculty. Valedictorian and salutatorian are named on the basis of scholastic averages over four years. Who's Who nominees are recommended by the Senate. Miss Southern and the most popular students are chosen by general campus elections, athletic students by the intramural boards, and the remaining features by a board consisting of the editors of the Interlachen and representatives from each fraternity, sorority and independent group.

PRESIDENT SCOTTIE BOZEMAN.

Long notorious as a dilatory body, the Senate this year took measures to establish itself as a regulative and governing assembly. Principal measures included the usual handling of Youth Parley, Founder's Week, campus elections, and inauguration of penalty for excessive absences from chapel or classes. Siver Wilson, as Vice-President, handled much of the work of President Scottie Bozeman, who served as a circuit rider on the Spring Lake charge. With the Student Progressives holding a small majority, matters of a political nature usually were under their control.

Granting additional privileges to dormitoried coeds, the W. S. G. A. clamped down with a firm hand on misdemeanors. In a year of freedom from serious offenses, the Council cooperated with various defense councils in stimulating effort and teamwork in its own particular realm. Members of the Council are elected from each class and from each dormitory, with an assortment of subordinates to insure supervision of each wing and main hall.

Male counterpart of the W. S. G. A., the Men's Executive Council stirred from the doldrums this year with frequent constructive suggestions for the betterment of homo sapiens. Members include representatives of each fraternity and independent group, usually the president and senate member. Cooperation in carrying out recommendations was surprisingly good.

Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary dramatic fraternity, extended bids to nine members this year, including Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, former student. The only formal event of the year was the banquet and initiation February 21. Not only actors, but backstage artists, electricians, make-up specialists, and others making distinguished contribution to the field of drama are accepted into the group.

Kappa Delta Pi, national honorary education fraternity, sets the rigid requirements of a "B" average in general work, plus a "B" average in education, plus outstanding work in educational circles. Seventeen new members were admitted on these standards in December, while five more were initiated May 2. Kappa Delta Pi begins this year the award of a gold scroll to the senior making the outstanding record in education, with emphasis on internship or practice teaching.

From the cream of the crop of home economists at Florida Southern are selected the members of Kappa Omicron Phi, national honorary home economics fraternity. Ambitious projects are undertaken by these domestic specialists, working in close cooperation with the local club and regular classes. High requirements keep the membership small and correspondingly exclusive. Southern's chapter has contributed a large number of officers to the state home economics organization.

From a mere handful of members in September, Pi Gamma Mu, national honorary social science fraternity, by press time had the largest enrollment of all honorary groups on campus. An average of "B" in thirty hours of social science, including history, economics, political science, and sociology, is necessary for admittance into this service organization. Coupled with the scholastic emphasis is worthy contribution to school life through extracurricular activities.

Outstanding achievement in debate is the criterion for membership in Tau Kappa Alpha, national honorary forensic fraternity. A pledgeship that rivals that of the social fraternities brings forth heated soapbox arguments on absurd topics. In its saner moments the organization discards the bull and displays the qualities for which its members were selected.

BLUE KEY

OFFICERS

Jim Barnum . . . . . President

Newest honorary organization, Blue Key operated on a local basis while carrying on negotiations for a national charter. Eligibility is on the basis of points earned in the four fields of scholarship, fine arts, political and social work, and athletics. Nine charter members at the time of going to press were investigating prospects for membership next year. Several large scale permanent projects are still in the plastic stage.

Recognizing excellent scholarship among freshman girls, Torchbearers accepted a group of choice recruits this year. Membership ceases at the end of the sophomore year, when retiring officers relinquish their regime. Significant of the authenticity of the selection is the fact that members maintain high scholastic ratings during the sophomore year. Resting on their scholastic laurels, the Torchbearers plan no conflicting social activities but gain their recreation from other organizations with which they are invariably associated.

Watching their elected heads depart in service of the nation, the remaining Interlachen staff members were hard pressed to carry through plans laid out by the editor and business manager. Among ambitious projects attempted were increased use of group pictures for organizations and wholesale production of pictures by student photographers, who snapped, printed, and enlarged the visual record of an eventful year. The greatest problem was to keep pace with a rapidly changing personnel in all organizations.

HEN 1942

Department editors Partin, Hardee, Hedberg, Cousins and Gillette quizzed faculty and students to obtain vital information for this year's publication.

In the first year of extensive student photography, Walter Daran, Paula Strother, and Norman Dando did an admirable job of printing and enlarging, as well as taking the pictures.

Lloyd Crowell assumed the bulk of the work for men's sports after Uncle Sam's call removed Walter Clements and Alan Lester from participation.

Women's sports heads Peggy Edwards and Edna Long followed closely the feminine races for the coveted trophies.

Under energetic and capable leadership, the Southern, weekly newspaper, was consistent throughout the year in its adequate coverage, non-partisan policies, and editorial challenge. Particularly commendable were the special Christmas and Easter editions employing attractive color headings. Mechanically, the paper reached a high plane as student printers learned the tricks of the trade to eliminate typographical errors that have been a plague for several years.

Managing Editor Simmons and Advisor Lavigne follow the heated sports race in the newest Southern.

Masthead positions are capably filled by Charlotte Townsend, Bruce Meservey, Ramon Russell, Bob Hughes, and Tia Townsend.

Entertaining columns, special interviews, and the latest campus gossip are given expression by feature writers Peggy McDowell, Rosemary Townsend, Leo Weinstein, Helen Myers, and Barbara Old.

Proof reading and reporting details are handled by Phyllis Hornby, Ruth Furen, Virginia Smith, and Sherley Smith.

Improvement in type appearance and accuracy this year was due to the efforts of Mrs. Grebenstchikoff, with her able assistants Sterling Gardner, Emerson Whitacre, Ralph Richard, Bob Hughes, and Albert Dyke.

Outlet for budding freshman literary talent, the Muse usually astonishes staid upperclassmen who find some of the polished vocabulary beyond their comprehension. Through publication twice a year, creative efforts of the Pierian Club, Freshman English literary society, are brought forth. Cover design, art work, and mimeographing are done entirely by the frosh.

The Pool, published in the spring term of each year, is a collection of campus verse written by the students and faculty of Florida Southern College. First published in 1939 with Carroll Teeter as editor, the little volume provided a much-needed medium for a free expression of spontaneous poetic effort. Named for the pool in the garden, the first volume was dedicated to the memory of Dr. Frederick Bohn Fisher, before whose Hindu Temple lies the Reflection Pool.

The Y. W. C. A. truly justifies its claim to the title of benevolent organization. Throughout the year, hard working members round up castoff clothing for rummage sales, the proceeds of which are donated to help the needy of the community. Southern Singers, a mixed chorus of forty voices, is probably the most widely publicized group on campus. Stressing delicate tonal shading under the precise interpretation of Dr. Stewart, the singers performed a pretentious program in some of the largest churches of the state. Plans for a trip to New England fell through when the transportation problem became acute.

The SOUTHERN SINGERS

To culminate a year of regular Sunday evening excursions to other localities, the Southern Singers journeyed for a week through south Florida. Vero Beach, Fort Pierce, West Palm Beach, Miami, and Fort Myers were the regular stops, with informal high school programs interspersed in Fort Lauderdale, Punta Gorda, and Arcadia. Between programs the Singers went to the beach, visited relatives along the way, and generally took charge of any restaurants, stores, or theatres they invaded.

Most of the student body participated in some way in the presentation of the plays of 1941-42. The large back stage crew included prop men, scenery movers, artists, electricians, sound effects men, prompters, and others seeking enough points to become full-fledged members of Vagabonds. A just reward for their efforts was found in back stage parties after each play and in the annual hill climb featuring Mr. Callahan's famous barbecues.

Supreme triumph of the Debate Council came just before press time when five Southern orators returned from the Southeastern Debate Tournament with a bevy of honors placing them among the top-notch teams of the country. Forced by the international situation to shuffle for itself for funds, the Council charged admission to the intramural debates, marked by surprise victories for Alpha Sigma and Alpha Chi Omega, and utilized the proceeds for expenses to the regional tournament. Optimistic participants looked to even greater successes next year.

The Cosmos Club is Florida Southern's branch of International Relations Clubs. Regular meetings are devoted to the study of problems affecting the international scene. Highlight of the year was the meeting of the State Convention here in December, with Major Cummings, Lakeland air school physician, as principal speaker and Irma Zebendon, state president, in the chair. Papers were read and discussions effected by representatives of colleges and universities throughout the state.

The FUTURE TEACHERS

As Southern's internship program entered its second year and the laboratory school became the haunt of future teachers, organizations for teachers became more significant, undertook more ambitious projects, and increased their memberships. Induction of many teachers into the war effort left vacancies eagerly sought by members of F. T. A.

Falling short of its goal of a hundred members, F. T. A. nevertheless was second only to the Y. W. C. A. as the largest campus organization. Especially effective was the distribution of educational literature among members. The realism, as well as the idealism, of teaching was outlined by leading educators invited to speak at the regular meetings. As the year grew to a close, plans were under way for the chief social event of the year, a combination swimming party and picnic at the Municipal Pool.

Gamma Sigma Chi furnished the rallying point for prospective preachers. Ministerial students, some serving as fulltime pastors in small surrounding churches, united to sponsor vespers each week in collaboration with the Y. W. C. A. Preaching missions over a period of two months took young ministers into local churches to hold the entire Sunday program. Most familiar advertising for Gamma Sig were the notices of vespers that adorned the cafeteria tables on Fridays.

Pan-Hellenic's outstanding function is to insure fair play in rushing among sororities. Regulations provide for strictly Dutch treat socials until the beginning of rush week in November and for restricted expenditures on rush parties. The traditional Pan-Hellenic tea in the drawing room helps to spread the salve of mutual interest over the wounds of strenuous rushing.

Functioning as a regulatory body among fraternities, the Council took measures to eliminate illegal rushing, discourage "hot-boxing", and prevent long and extended orange fights. In general, relations remained amicable as constituent groups laid aside ill feelings in a cooperative war effort. As a result, pledges were rather evenly divided, with no overwhelming gains, and the athletic program was a real contest all the way.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

ALPHA CHI OMEGA maintained its usual high standards in scholarships, athletics, and social events during the year. The visit of Miss Estelle Leonard, one of the founders of Alpha Chi Omega, to the campus was the occasion for a formal reception at the University Club. Regular "cozy" on Sunday evenings was alternated with Sunday morning breakfasts in the chapter room. The Alpha Chi team was the overwhelming choice of the judges in intramural debating, contending that winning the war was the essential aim of the U. S. Closing the year was a combination recital and art exhibit, the proceeds of which were to go to American and British War Relief.

LED by experienced heads and supported by new recruits, Delta Zeta athletic teams gained the high mark for women's intramurals. Politically and socially, the nationals regained former high standing by taking in a substantial pledge group. Freshman members established themselves in campus offices and on smooth-working sports teams. Highlight of the social year was the celebration of Delta Zeta Founders' Week in October, with a formal reception honoring the national extension vice-president, Mrs. James Edward Keezel, of Winter Park.

KAPPA GAMMA TAU once again enlisted a large number of pledges who helped them in the classroom, on the field, and on the campus. A scrappy Kappa Gam team was a potent force in each sport, although unable to capture any championships. The only organized sorority in the Student Progressive party, Kappa Gamma Tau exercised an important role in placing its candidates in general elections and in organization offices. The social program was topped off with a Sadie Hawkins' Day party.

ZETA ZETA ZETA began its third year of existence by snagging the largest crop of pledges of all sororities, well over twenty. Principal projects for the year was remodeling and redecorating the chapter room. Ineffective in athletics in former years, Tri-Zeta had much improved teams that just missed taking the trophy several times. The sorority was well represented in political slates, not losing a single candidate in the two elections during the year. The large membership spreads into all phases of campus activity.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA, sole national social fraternity, enjoyed a highly successful year. Besides taking the basketball cup for the second consecutive year, the Lambs annexed the volleyball and table tennis titles. Epsilon Xi chapter played host to the State Conclave of Lambda Chi Alpha in March, with a wide representation from other chapters attending. Like the other fraternities, Lambda Chi was hard hit by the draft but had a sufficient quantity and quality of new men to stand the loss.

ALPHA SIGMA

FOR the first time since its merger in 1938, Alpha Sigma was under one roof in its beautiful new home. The fraternity's long time monopoly on athletic cups was broken by three other teams during the year, but the Sigs grabbed enough seconds to clinch the year cup. Surprise achievement of the year was the capture of the intramural debate cup by support of the argument that a stable economic basis was the most essential aim of the U. S. during the war. The traditional Christmas serenade and breakfast and numerous parties featured the year's social life.

KAPPA THETA PSI

IN its first full year of existence, Kappa Theta Psi firmly established itself as a leading fraternity. The Kaps shoved Alpha Sigma out of the sports spotlight, made an impressive stand in intramural debating, and lent its members to a host of organizations ranging from Southern Singers to the physical education club. Proving that manual labor and brains often go together, Kappa Theta Psi maintained the highest scholastic average among fraternities throughout the year.

The INTRAMURAL BOARDS

There's no place for laggards in Southern's intramural program, but unconquered worlds for every potential athlete. When the whistle blows for the first combat, societies and independents produce competitors, sponsoring old guard contestants and those anxious newcomers who have shown interest in the sports world—and the bystanders cheer the teams with the lusty rivalry of fraternity. This is a schedule which offers opportunity to all, without hampering the more adept or stifling the novice.

FOOTBALL

Competition broached rampant in Southern's intramurals for 1941-42. The rejuvenation of interfraternity rivalry by the introduction of Kappa Theta Psi as an organized team portends new suspense for Herculean descendants of the future. Although Alpha Sigma maintained its top position in the point system, it did not dominate the field as in past years. Offering a threat in every sport, the Kappa Theta team took first blood by defeating the Alps for the new football cup, the old one being a permanent fixture on the Alpha Sigma mantle after three years of successive victory.

FOOTBALL ACTION

John Young breezed his passes through failing defenses to the hands of Williford and Spencer, skirted ends for steady gains, and led the winners to their award. The Sig team was highlighted with the all-round contribution of Joe Brooks, who attempted to fill the place vacated by Floyd Lay last year and bolster a team weakened by graduation and the summons of the army during the last stages of the struggle. The final decision for the cup was decided by a playoff in which Kappa Theta defeated Alpha Sigma 19-0, having been vanquished in the first encounter of the tournament and rising to triumph in the second. The underdog Chi Rho team pulled itself up the bars as a potential power for consideration, Ramon Russell being the chief threat, by taking third place over the Lambda Chis.

SPEEDBALL

Evelyn Stevens' and Estelle Webb's names were added to the list of "wounded on the field of action" as speedball got underway. Limping coeds aroused curiosity among the boys, who finally admitted that the girls were "tough sports-women."

For the second time Delta Zeta kicked her way to victory. Goalies held important positions as final scores depended upon their being at the right place at the right time. Independents and Tri-Zetas really gave the two leading teams a tough fight in defending themselves. Long-winded players proved of great value as to the final outcome of the games. The Kappa Gams showed good sportsmanship by playing with less players rather than have their records blackmarked by forfeits. The Alpha Chis captured second place honors.

NORWEGIAN BASEBALL

Excitement fills the gym as the Norwegian baseball games get underway. Zig-zag across the court, in an attempt to dodge the "dead-eye" aim of the opposing team, characterizes the play of the stars of Norwegian baseball fame. With skill and speed the Delta Zetas and Independents steadily downed all their opponents and emerged at the end of the season with a tie for top honors. Alpha Chi Omega came in to take second place in this court game.

P I N G

Walter Ropp breezed through the ping pong tournament with Lambda Chi aspirations tagging along astern. Last year Lay, the individual champion, lost a struggle-wrought game to Wooten for the team trophy, and this time the combined prowess of Ropp and Wooten left no doubt as to the outcome. Young and Whitacre gave the champs stiff competition, but defeat was inevitable. Junior Tolle promised a strong individual threat from the Alpha Sigma house, but the army called and took priority over ping pong competition. The form exhibited in the below-table pick-ups of Ropp on returns was spectacular and seemingly invulnerable.

Coordinate with ping pong, the shuffleboard shuffle found the scholastic Chi Rhos fighting gallantly to retain their sole token of athletic achievement wrung from the Sigs in '40, but the tide turned against them and the Alps seized their first prize in a year of setbacks. To cinch Sigma superiority the Alp "B" team tied for second place with the vanquished Lions. Paniello upheld the Lamb reputation by clearing the field in individuals to surpass McQuagge, runner-up for the Sigs.

P O N G

Ping pong, one of the most favored minor sports, started off in the winter term, with the final winner unpredictable. "Dark horse" player, Redde Johnson pinged her last game to defeat Peggy Edwards, both Delta Zeta players. The Independent team took first place, followed by the Delta Zetas.

Though a minor sport, shuffleboard drew out many participants. The team tournament championship went to the Independent team when they defeated the skilled team of Tri-Zeta. Shuffling to victory for the individual championship was Peggy Edwards, who defeated Ruth Furen.

VOLLEYBALL and BOWLING

A new decree by the intramural board barred all varsity basketball players from participation in the volleyball tournament. Lambda Chi seized its first cup in the secondary sports with the spectacular performance of Sandy Paniello, the Lamb spiker deluxe, compelling the Sigs to relinquish the trophy from last year and fall to third in the race. Defeated only once during the season, the Lambs were frustrated in the first encounter with the second-place Kappa Thetas, who were most weakened by the basketball decision which took Young and Burke from their line-up. Most interest revolved around the last game between Chi Rho and the Lambda Chi team which, if defeated, would be forced to a deadlock with Kappa Theta. The determination and the skill of the smaller Lions were to no avail against the taller nationals and their typical efficiency.

For five consecutive afternoons the alleys bounced with ardent flocks of fraternity members out to support their group and contribute their talents. When the melee drifted away and the separate tabulations were evaluated, Pinky Clements found himself with the ten pin title at the head of the Sigs' victorious bowlers. Jim Christy managed to oust Pinky in a close score and adorn himself with the duck pin laurel. This was the second minor triumph to redeem the Alps for their faltering push to preserve old honors.

GIRLS VOLLEYBALL and BADMINTON

Once again women's sports opened with five good teams volleying forth to victory. Keen competition was offered from every team this year. After the first few games, sideline fans dared not predict the final outcome. Delta Zeta lost out in the second round of play, leaving the two undefeated teams, the Independents and Alpha Chis, struggling in the final game. The Alpha Chis finally took first place, giving the Independents, the winners of last year, a hard fight. The selection for the all-star included Peggy Edwards, Dorothy Horton, Ellabeth Morgan, Corine Smith, Lorraine Cliett, Tia Townsend, and Edna Long.

"Birdies" zoom through the air as badminton comes in for its share of interest in the sports program. More dexterity and proper coordination were displayed by participants in badminton than in any other sport. Every team was almost equally matched as they kept the birdie flying back and forth across the net with even, well-directed strokes. The Independents, Kappa Gams, and Alpha Chis were finally defeated in the second round of play. Tri-Zeta and Delta Zeta fought to the very last for championship honors. The expert placing of the birdie and tricky plays finally won the championship for Delta Zeta. Tia Townsend defeated Judy Bryant to gain individual badminton honors.

'Watch the Lambs and the Lions' was the word when the basketball season was first called. The Lambs were first seeded, due to their high place in '40, and the power of the small boys was unknown. Alpha Sigma hit a streak of winning in the first games, defeating both Lambda Chi and Chi Rho with the baskets of White and the consistent maneuvers of Cook and Kindred, but it ended there and Sigma fell to low spot at the close of the year. The Lions flashed down the court with perfect teamwork and swift attacks featuring Ramon Russell backed by Dando and Campbell, and bowed only to Lambda Chi in their first game. Paniello of the Lambs was perhaps the best man in the game, the big threat to all teams. But in the first Kappa Theta fray, the Lambs kneeled before the work of Gordon Edwards, year's high scorer, and Leon Mills by a one point margin in a hard fought battle. Then the last game between Lambs and Lions, each with two defeats, was reached, and each team tried every trick to fill the basket. Finally with decisive judgment, despite the miraculous feats of Russell, the little Lions fell back from the skill of Paniello and the coordination of Barnum and Lee 15-13 in the last minute.

Young, Runner-up.

FOUL SHOOTING

As a secondary climax, a stiff contest was expected for foul shooting honors among Pierce, Young, Kindred and Paniello. Finally with a 42 leading a general tapering to 39, Paniello proclaimed his victorious kingship and wore another individual crown.

Basketball, the favorite sport of Southern coeds, got off to a flying start with the Alpha Chi Omegas playing the Tri-Zetas in the opening game of the season. With shrieks from the crowd intermingled with blasts of the referee's whistle, the teams shot their way to victory. By tricky plays, quick passes, and sudden openings, sports fans noticed on the basketball court new freshman talent displayed at its best. Delta Zeta and Alpha Chi tied for first place, forcing a play-off game before a gym packed with fans. The score was close as both teams battled for superiority in maneuvering the round white sphere through the basket. In the latter part of play the Delta Zetas outplayed the Alpha Chis and rang up an 18-8 championship score. The all-star team was composed of Dot Styers, Edna Long, Leda Belle Maddox, Corine Smith, Peggy Edwards, and Ora Belle Wilkes.

Edwards, Champion

FOUL SHOOTING

As 1942 rolled around, we again saw Peggy Edwards dropping baskets with an ease that is characteristic of champions. Far surpassing her opponents, Peggy dropped 43 baskets out of a possible 50 into the basket. Peggy's record is not only unusual in women's sports, but it is an exceptional sports feat of the entire college program, as she rang up more goals than even the nearest male contender, Sandy Paniello, who shot 42 out of 50 baskets. Ora Belle Wilkes, Independent, won second place shooting 30 out of 50.

A game gang of Moccasins under Coach Battle scrapped with determination against fated odds and reaped glory only for their intrepidity. Capitalizing on speed and floor work, the group was no push-over in the conference despite its 5'9" average in height. The sharpshooting of Pierce and the deceptive and ever-present play of Young, the nucleus of the team and the big offensive gun, were the mainstays throughout the season.

found him one of the very few players in the nation to be basketball captain in a major league and the only one in the Southern States. Christy was a fighter and Burke, the only tall man, was experienced and cool. The great hardware have always been, of course, the lack of talent and substitute. Usually, after the game and outplayed the opponent in the first half, the team found it difficult to keep in the game when the second part arrived. Unable to play the basket due to their size, they were forced to keep the ball on the floor and work on their feet and fast break. In the final game, Burke was able to build a team worthy of the title and he made it a very successful one.

T R A C K

Track remains the finale of a year of intramural sports at Southern, bringing almost everyone into competition of some kind. On May 1 a day will be devoted to the "lighter" sports, such as jumping, relays, races, throwing, etc., to give muscles a last strenuous tug. The fraternities are still watching the Kappa Theta house to see what talent they can produce for this final contest, and even now mental preparations are being made for renewed determination and competition next year. The army has taken its toll already, especially from the Sigs, and there is some anxiety as to college sports for the forthcoming years—but that is neither here nor there. And so the south's most complete intramural sports program has come to a culmination.

HORSESHOES

The horseshoe joust followed closely on the heels of the football tilt and lent added emphasis to the Kappa Theta victories. To deprive the Sigs of another award and achieve another triumph, the Kappa Thetas galloped away with the silver key in the individuals and the new cup in the team contest. Horseshoes has never been an apathetic combat, and this time Ernest Spencer hooked the last stake by leading Warren Wooten in the finals. Bill Clay had fought a threatening but doomed battle in the quarter-finals with Wooten, losing by two points in the last game. Young, Tucker, Howard, Culpepper, and Broughton supported Spencer to take home the new trophy secured after the conquest of the old one for three years by the Alps.

Arrows whizzed by as the archery range was kept busy with teams practicing to gain technique in hitting the bulls-eye. For the first time in the intramural program, archery had become a definitely competitive sport. The Kappa Gams, for many years champions of the arrow game, were nosed out for the championship by an Alpha Chi lead of one point. Ellabeth Morgan, Independent, was the individual winner. Carlo Townsend and Edna Long tied for second place honors.

Southern's newest sport, scooter hockey, gained in popularity this year. This game created great interest for sideline fans who were continually amused at players who "scooted" in opposite directions from their scooters. Independents and Alpha Chis put up a hard fight for top honors, tying the final game score. In the playoff game, the Independents gained an edge in hitting the disc through the goalie's territory. The Independents continue to hold championship honors, while the Alpha Chis are again the runner-up team.

At the time of press Alpha Sigma stands the unopposed champion of softball, undefeated, and boasting easily the best team on the field. As compensation for a year's diligence in the sports world, these former victors are at last making a successful bid for a major title. Surpassing the Kappa Thetas, who have suffered twice from them, the Sigs uphold Joe Brooks in the pitcher's box as their leader and mainstay. The Chi Rhos are the hopeless underdogs in this, and the Lambda Chis have had few incursions into enemy territory except for a spectacular game with the Thetas, in which they led up to the end of the sixth when the score was tied and then fell behind when Bill Howard, the opposing hurler, knocked a homer with bases loaded in the last of the seventh. Hardly less thrilling was the sudden rise of the Sigs with six runs in the fifth inning to crush again the Kappa Thetas. The working boys have the finest infield in the form of Young, Broughton, Rood, George, and Porch, but the Sigmas take their games with pitching and batting offenses.

T E N

Kappa Theta racketed unbeaten and unchallenged through tennis opposition, winning everything 6-1, 6-2. With such swishers as Howard, Young, Culpepper, Rood, and led by lanky Burke, there was little menace for the working boys even from the ex-champion Sigs of last year. Russell and Dando swatted a few for Chi Rho and Chapman and Brooks for Sigma but the most lustrous flame of the tournament leaped from the strings of Zerny Barnes, LCA pledge who commandeered the individuals with no serious opposition except from Burke in the quarter finals, when he took a 7-5, 6-3 match to subjugate the Kappa Theta.

Springtime finds sports-minded students on the softball field—players and spectators are ready to play their part whether it be lung power or muscle. Seniors "swing" their athletic swan song as softball games continue. The battery go forth to practice, slinging the ball across home plate. Contact! And the ball is winging its way skyward as pinch-hitter covers territory around bases to make a sensational home run. Keen competition is already seen among the softball teams, but Delta Zeta and Alpha Chi teams are favored to participate in the softball finals.

N I S

Serve! And the game begins with championship hopefuls putting all they have into serving up a victory for themselves. A rapid exchange of volleys, forehand and backhand, and the game gets underway. Ellabeth Morgan, top-ranking player of last year, comes in with powerful drives battling for her team. The Alpha Chi and Delta Zeta teams are again running a close race for tennis recognition. The Tri-Zetas, Kappa Gams, and Independents offered a definite threat in tennis matches, but were caught off guard by a few well placed balls, which put the Alpha Chi and Delta Zeta teams as final contenders for the title. Delta Zeta won the final honors as expert racket wielders. Individual matches were still in play at press time with freshman talent adding a threatening note to veteran players.

Timid freshmen making their appearance in September soon lose their self-consciousness in the maze of nonsensical rules they are required to obey.

Gloating upperclassmen bedevil the hapless "Pats" with every imaginable kind of mental and physical inconvenience. Judge Al Hedberg and a jury of austere senators pronounce sentence upon offenders who fail in some respect to please their superiors. But from it all emerges a friendlier feeling with most of that first loneliness gone.

S N A P S

A number of nationally-known celebrities graced campus on the auspicious occasions of Ministers' Founders' Week, and other special events.

Among the noted visitors were Dr. Robert McGowan, Lt. Benter of the Navy Band, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, E. Stanley Jones, Dr. Roy L. Smith, Dean Hough, Major Cummings, Homer Rodeheaver, Dr. Tsieh, Porter Heaps, Cameron McLean, and Raymond Koch. Dean Tolle's appearance in the group is purely coincidental.

The gala festivities of Founders' Week commemorate the birthday of the college, when faculty, visitors, and students work harder staying out of class than they do during the rest of the year combined. An all-student banquet featuring the crowning of Miss Southern, the gigantic presentation of "Elijah," the dedication of the rising library building, the physical education review in the gym, the barbecue at which all the conventional niceties of etiquette were discarded in favor of convenience—these and many other incidents are reminiscent of those days.

SNAPS

Behind the scenes in the life of a faculty member are various photogenic pastimes. Dr. Hoffman advises us in the rare picture taken on his excursion to Mexico after orchids that he is the one with the hat. Behind the ping pong table, fronting a chorus of a thousand, presiding at banquets, or relaxing with the fraternity boys, our faculty come down to earth and prove themselves regular fellows.

Classroom activities consume only a fragmentary part of student faculty associations on campus. We find our professors prominent in the management and support of all campus occasions. In action they often drop some of their professorial dignity and become ordinary human beings—stalling in chapel, ogling at the celebrities, and donning academic gowns with poorly disguised discomfort.

S N A P S

When two or more students assemble the result is a group picture. Candid camera reveals the carbon copy, brunettes, rouge and lipstick for the very masculine leading men, Y. W. C. A. Christmas party, the super performance of the Navy Band, flag raising ceremonies at 7:50, hours spent in the library, chapel, and drawing room. A multitude of memorable moments.

Probably no other campus in the country has more beauty spots than our own in a grove on a hill by a lake in a city of sunny Florida. Continually growing by the addition of new buildings, the college presents too interesting a pictorial to be confined to one section of this book. Here are some more of the scenes we love so well.
